Description	Most plastics are still generated from fossil fuels, which increases manufacturing, use, and disposal greenhouse gas emissions. Plastics hurt the environment due to littering, poor waste management, and microplastics from product wear and tear. Recycling is low. Polymers and their chemical additives may infiltrate the food chain due to their long half-life. V P College of Pharmacy students and staff educated the community about plastic bags, their environmental effect, and their hazards. At the end of the campaign principal sir congratulated all the students for their active participation and also thanked the coordinators for successfully conducting the awareness campaign.
